3. Abbreviations for GROUPS (for undergraduate study programmes)

The course schedule also includes information about the group(s) of students attending the course.

A group can be the MAIN GROUP or one of its SUB-GROUPS.

The main group includes all students from a certain year of study in the study programme. Its abbreviated name consists of the abbreviation of the study programme (for example: MA, RIN, BF...) and the year of study (1, 2, 3). An example of the main group: MA3 = 3rd year of the undergraduate study programme Mathematics.

The main group can be divided into sub-groups if:

- the students of the same year of study in the study programme are divided into more group at seminars (SE), tutorials (SV) or laboratory work (LV). An example: »RIN1-1skup« = students of the 1st year of study in the undergraduate study programme Computer Science who are included in the 1st group; groups are listed under a) below;
- the sub-groups of the main group are also elective courses, as they are attended only by the students who have chosen the course. An example: »BI2-BVAJ« = students of the 2nd year of study in the undergraduate study programme Biodiversity who have chosen the elective course Biological Topics in English.

a) COMPULSORY courses

If students are divided into groups for seminar sessions (SE), tutorials (SV) or laboratory work (LV), the courses are marked with the main group (BP1, RIN 2, BI3, etc.) and its sub-groups.

Below is a list of the courses and programmes for which the division of students into groups is necessary for seminars (SE), tutorials (SV) or laboratory work (LV).
